"Seven days..." croaks a voice from the grave. For reporter Rachel Keller, the words may be a death sentence. Naomi Watts stars as the scribe whose investigation into a legendary videotape—you die one week after you watch it—takes a terrifying turn after she views the cassette. Haunted by bizarre visions, Rachel races to uncover the dark secrets of the tape's origin before its evil curse comes to claim her—and those she loves most. Martin Henderson, Brian Cox co-star. (AC,AL,V) PG13-1:55. Jan. 3, 6, 11, 14, 19, 23, 31

STARTS SATURDAY, JANUARY 3

Two lovebirds from opposite sides of the tracks go on the honeymoon from hell that leaves them questioning their decision to get married in the first place. Ashton Kutcher and Brittany Murphy star in this outrageous comedy about a marriage that goes from bliss to blunder. Sarah is a tycoon's daughter; Tom's a nighttime traffic reporter. When these opposites attract and head down the aisle, things are just peachy. That is, until they head off for a European honeymoon in which they miserably fail in an attempt to join the Mile High Club, destroy their luxury hotel, wreck their rental car and—worst of all—discover that they have nothing in common! Christian Kane co-stars. (AC,AL) PG13-1:35. Jan. 10, 13, 18, 21, 24, 26, 30

Do Unadoptable Dogs Deserve to Die?

Every year, more than five million dogs are brought to U.S. animal shelters; many of them never find homes. For two years, filmmaker Cynthia Wade was given access to Rondout Valley Kennels and its controversial owner Sue Sternberg. The result is this thought-provoking film about ethics and choices in a morally ambiguous world as Sternberg and her staff delight in finding homes for some canines—while considering euthanasia for dangerously aggressive dogs that are “unadoptable.” TV14-1:13. Sundays Weren't Always So "Super"

Before the Super Bowl became a media-saturated, unofficial "national holiday," it was only a game. The first Super Bowl—pitting the Green Bay Packers against the Kansas City Chiefs—gave scant indication that the game would evolve into a mass-marketing behemoth. Using NFL Films footage, newsreels and interviews, this film examines Super Bowl I from several levels: it's awkward efforts to become an "event," the historical impact of the game itself, and the social context of the mid 1960s.
